

April 23, 1861

Oliver Johnson,
Anti-Slavery Office,
5 Beekman Street,
New York City.

Boston, April 23, 1861.

Dear Johnson:

I have received your letter, and read it to Phillips, Quincy, Wallcut, Pillsbury, Heywood, &c., and the result of our conference you will find on the other half of this sheet. The same mail brought me similar letters from McKim and E. M. Davis. I think we have decided wisely, and that great and general relief will be experienced as soon as our announcement appears in print. I presume you will have no meeting of the City Anti-Slavery Society for the same reason; and I hope the Woman's Rights Convention will also be postponed. Let us all stand aside, when the North is rushing like a tornado in the right direction. Phillips will not go to New York, of course. We shall not hold ~~the~~ New England Convention.

Yours, heartily,
Wm Lloyd Garrison.

